INTERNATIONAL KARATE SEMINAR WITH

PATRICK MCCARTHY
HANSHI (9TH DAN)

DRESDEN, JUNE 21ST, 2014

In Shōtōkan ryū also known as Tekki, Naihanchi kata is one of the most popular karate exercises. Its transmission is strongly associated with the name Motobu Chōki (1870—1944), who is considered to be THE expert on Naihanchi, not least for creating 12 application practices (kumite), combining and extending different Naihanchi based infight methods.

Martial arts expert, outstanding competitor, book author (e.g. "Bubishi – The Bible of Karate") and seminar instructor of international renown, Patrick McCarthy hanshi offers his research based re-interpretation of Motobu's practices around kata Naihanchi and the 12 two-person practices.

It is our pleasure to host McCarthy sensei in Dresden for the first time, where he is going to teach an international seminar on Motobu's legacy. Martial artists of any style are welcome to participate. A learning opportunity you would not want to miss!

"It has always been the human body that ultimately dictates our way of fighting." Patrick McCarthy
